CARE ÖSTERREICH

CARE Österreich is part of a global humanitarian network of national member organizations. We are working to create a world of hope, inclusion and social justice. Our aim is to make a contribution for poverty to be overcome and for people to live in dignity and safety.

Saving Lives, Enabling Education, Strengthening Rights:

CARE is helping people to help themselves all over the world. Helping sustainably and effectively are important criteria for every CARE project.

Dear Readers,

The past year continued to be dominated by the COVID-19 pandemic, which according to the WHO has claimed the lives of nearly 15 million people. Although vaccines were developed in a short period of time, we see a very inequitable distribution of the opportunity to vaccinate worldwide. Only 13 percent of vaccine doses reached economically poor countries. The global economic imbalance widened.

In 2021, the second year of the pandemic, CARE continued to ensure that people in economically poorer countries had access to health care, medical treatment and vaccinations. Thanks to your donations, CARE Österreich was able to support COVID-19 projects in India, Nepal, Bangladesh and Bosnia-Herzegovina, which helped millions of people cope with the situation of the pandemic.

Poverty has continued to worsen around the world. Hunger is on the rise again. This is accelerated by climate change. Its effects threaten the survival of people in the countries of the global south. We are working in numerous projects to improve the nutritional situation of children, women and the elderly, who are particularly vulnerable. We are taking sustainable measures to adapt to climate change.

These issues drastically show us that global and constructive cooperation is more important than ever. This is exactly what CARE stands for. Thanks to your support, CARE Österreich's worldwide efforts help millions of people not only in receiving emergency humanitarian aid, but also in working together on effective solutions to fight poverty.

Yours sincerely,

Dr. in Andrea Barschdorf-Hager

24 FAST FACTS

Hunger has returned worldwide

When bread is no longer affordable, what's left?

By Andrea Barschdorf-Hager, CEO of CARE Österreich

Wars are rarely regionally limited conflicts. They are destructive events with massive consequences. In addition to immeasurable human suffering, they bring drastic economic consequences that are often visible globally. As a result of the war, Ukraine, once known as the "breadbasket of the world," is barely able to export wheat, corn, cooking oil or even fertilizer. The men have to defend their country instead of working in agricultural production. The women and children flee the embattled regions. The farmers who still cultivate their fields do so at the risk of their lives, because fields are mined to destroy the agriculture.

CARE has long warned that the pandemic and climate crisis have increased food insecurity in many countries. Many will remember the images of locust swarms, which usually occur during long droughts and strip entire swaths of land bare. The lack of earning opportunities due to pandemic restrictions and disrupted supply chains weakened poorer households.

The war in Ukraine further exacerbates this precarious situation. Prices for basic food staples and energy are reaching dizzying heights. This is also hitting many people hard here in Austria. The consequences of the increased cost of living are far-reaching for many African countries north and south of the Sahara, the Middle East (especially Lebanon) and Yemen, and are raising concerns about hunger crises.

This is even more true for the estimated 155 million people in economically poorer countries who rely on food aid to survive, according to the UN. This staggering number could soon rise further.

CARE is addressing these enormous challenges through numerous projects in order for as many people as possible to not have to ask themselves: "If bread is no longer available, what will be left?" Thank you for supporting us in helping people in need!

Türkiye/Syria

Refugee children and young people need special protection

Türkiye has taken in more refugees from Syria than any other country in the world. In 2021, more than 3.7 million Syrians lived there. Among them are many children and young people. Syrian families in Türkiye are often in financial need. In addition, there are language barriers and a lack of knowledge about where and how they can seek help.

This is where a CARE project supported by the European Union comes in. It aims to empower and protect young refugees in the Turkish regions of Gaziantep, Sanliurfa and Adana. Refugee children and youth are at high risk of violence, exploitation and human trafficking. Their access to education is limited. The economic struggle for survival often forces their families to make hard choices. Children are sent to work or beg instead of going to school. Daughters are married off early to have one person less to feed.

"Far too many Syrian children have experienced violence, displacement and loss. They are under enormous pressure to support their families. This often jeopardizes their right to a normal childhood and education," says Sherine Ibrahim, CARE's country director in Türkiye. In partnership with the EU, CARE provides safe spaces for women and girls to empower and protect them. Youth and children are supported with sports and various programs designed to foster leadership skills and self-confidence. This also benefits social cohesion in the areas where the refugees live. "The programs are critical to protecting refugee children," Ibrahim says.

CARE provides information and highlights the dangers of child marriage, child labor and child begging. Affected families, children and youth learn where they can turn for help. "The EU remains committed to promoting and protecting the right of every child to grow up in a safe environment, have access to quality education and build a better and more peaceful future for themselves," says Claudia Amaral, head of the EU Humanitarian Aid Office in Türkiye.

The project is funded by the EU and will run until the end of September 2022, benefiting a total of 16,500 refugees.

Aid in Syria

CARE has been providing emergency aid directly in Syria since 2013 and has already assisted more than nine million people. Currently, CARE is helping displaced people in northern Syria with clean drinking water, sanitation and hygiene measures through partner organizations with the financial support of the European Union. Emergency workers on the ground provide people with food, clothing, blankets and cash to meet urgent needs. CARE also provides psychosocial support and emergency psychological assistance. Women, who often have to provide for their families alone, are being economically empowered.

Suffering in Silence

Poverty, hunger and flight affect millions of people worldwide every year. Yet their plight goes mostly unnoticed. That was also the case in 2021, the second year of the spread of the corona virus. But it would not be correct to link the lack of attention primarily to COVID-19.

"Many of the crises in our ranking are protracted and most are exacerbated by climate change," says Andrea Barschdorf-Hager, CEO of CARE Österreich. "The situation is particularly precarious for women and girls." The CARE report "Suffering in Silence," which was compiled for the sixth time in 2022, is dedicated to them.

In first place is Zambia. The landlocked country in southern Africa struggles with prolonged droughts. As a result, there is not enough food. Poverty and hunger affect women in particular - and many children. The little girl in the photo is being examined for signs of malnutrition. The tape measure is still green, giving the all-clear. But many families can hardly afford food anymore. In Zambia, the effects of climate change are already being strongly felt. This is also true for other African countries in the list.

In the shadow of the pandemic: Ten crises that made no headlines in 2021

1. Zambia - 1.2 million people do not have enough to eat
2. Ukraine - 3.4 million people need humanitarian aid*
3. Malawi - 17% of the population is severely malnourished
4. Central African Republic - 2.8 million people are in need of humanitarian aid
5. Guatemala - 2/3 of the population live on less than 2 US-Dollars a day
6. Colombia - 4.9 million people live under the control of armed groups
7. Burundi - 2.3 million people need humanitarian aid
8. Niger - 1.8 million children need food aid
9. Zimbabwe - 5.7 million people lack sufficient food
10. Honduras - 2.8 million people are in need of humanitarian aid

*The evaluation on Ukraine was prepared at a time when little attention had been paid to the suffering of the people in the east of the country. This changed shortly after the media analysis was completed, but could no longer be taken into account for methodological reasons.

With the JANO project, CARE fights against malnutrition and undernourishment in the north of the country. It is funded by the European Union and the Austrian Development Agency (ADA).

Bangladesh

"I am so happy that my baby is developing well"

A safe pregnancy and a healthy child: For Sadhna Rani this wish has come true with the support of CARE. It succeeded with the promotion of awareness for healthy nutrition and the offer of prenatal examinations for pregnant women. "Before I was not aware about how important this is for me and for the baby's health," Sadhna says. "Now I know more about it. So, my son is developing well."

Project JANO (Joint Action for Nutrition Outcome) provides access to information about balanced nutrition and also provides medical checkups to women in rural areas. Often, 40 percent of all children under five are malnourished in the country. There is a particular focus on proper nutrition for pregnant women, nursing mothers and children under five.

For example, Sadhna received advice from a project volunteer on how to plant a small garden by her house and grow her own vegetables to provide healthy food for herself and her family. She was also encouraged to breastfeed her son.

Noor Nahar was already pregnant with her second child when she first went for a medical checkup as part of the JANO project. She was also advised to eat a balanced diet with vegetables. In addition, she was given folic acid tablets during pregnancy. Noor's baby was born healthy. "For us in the remote villages, there is otherwise little access to health facilities. I wish more women would learn about it and use it," she says.

JANO also has an innovative technical component. A digital platform improves the flow of information in the food sector to prevent food shortages in northern Bangladesh at an early stage. This includes topics such as the expected harvest or emerging climatic conditions. It also looks at the way food prices are developing, how high stocks are and whether there are enough seeds available. The online platform was developed with the social business "mPower". The goal is to optimize nutrition planning in the regions where JANO is implemented.

Zaki Haider of "mPower" is convinced that digital innovations will have an impact. "We are in the age of the fourth industrial revolution. Digital technologies are changing the way we live and work," he says. That also applies to development cooperation. "Everyone involved, from governments to aid organizations and project participants, now rely on digital tools," Haider says. The JANO project is a successful example of how nutrition is improved by using digital platforms.

Lika Sherozia

Georgia

Giving young people a voice: "My life is more colorful now"

A youth amid conflict and insecurity: Lika Sherozia (14) lives in Muzhava, a Georgian village near the Russian-occupied Gali district in Abkhazia. Everyday life is not easy, especially for young people such as Lika. There is also a lack of leisure activities in the village. "We have no entertainment options: no cinema, no park to go for a walk in the evening, have fun and talk. Apart from the school, there is a sports field, but the young people are not motivated enough to go out and play together."

In the Youth Voices for Peace project, young people are encouraged through workshops and group discussions to work collectively and organize themselves for peace, equality and security. "My life has become more colorful since then. The project gave us hope and more motivation," says Lika. This is how young people are given a voice. "Before, we never felt we could speak openly. We've learned a lot since then and built up our own strengths."

Lika's career aspiration is to become a lawyer. With the help of the project, the girl has become an active member of the youth team who wants to develop the village further. "In the village of my dreams there is a theatre, parks, entertainment centers and clubs. This will connect young people with each other, and our village will be much more colorful," says Lika.

"Youth Voices for Peace" is funded by the Austrian Development Agency (ADA) and implemented by CARE in close cooperation with local partner organizations.

"The neighbors asked me to sell them my baby"

Afghanistan

It is one of the worst humanitarian crises in the world. In the summer of 2021, the Taliban took power again. Poverty and hardship have been worsening ever since.

Fatima (32) cannot feed her children. Her neighbors know this too. "They asked me if I would sell my youngest daughter to them," says Fatima. They offered 20,000 to 30,000 Afghanis (215 to 315 US-Dollars) for the seven-month-old baby. Out of desperation, Fatima and her husband agree. They need the money for food for their older children. At the last minute, the family learns that they are receiving help from CARE. "That's when we stopped the sale immediately."

After the takeover in Afghanistan, more than half of the population is starving. Food prices have doubled. For many families, nutrition has become unaffordable. Where will they get their next meal? Many parents are as desperate as Fatima. The need makes them do the unthinkable, such as giving up their youngest child in order for their older siblings to be able to eat. "We don't want our children to die," Fatima says. Her 12-year-old son goes begging on the streets. "The children often go to bed hungry," she reports.

When she receives the support from CARE, Fatima cries with relief. "Now I can buy food for my children. There is also something left for me. I am still breastfeeding." Fatima has to take care of her children on her own due to her husband being sick. She does the laundry for other families, but that hardly brings in any funds. For Fatima, CARE's cash aid is a lifesaver. Additionally, her husband receives medical care.

Even before the sun rises and the scorching heat begins, hundreds of thousands of families in Afghanistan wonder every day how they will survive the next few hours. Especially the many refugees who have to spend every night outdoors only survive from one day to the next. The mothers' and fathers' thoughts revolve around: "Will we have anything to eat? Where will we find clean drinking water? Where will we sleep tonight?"

In large parts of the country, people are suffering from the worst drought in decades. Hardly any crops are thriving in the parched fields. Harvests are failing. The few supplies have long since been used up. Recently, far too little rain has fallen. Even before the recent outbreaks of violence, many women and children were fleeing. CARE fears for their health and safety.

"The people of Afghanistan need our support more urgently than ever," says CARE relief worker Marianne O'Grady. CARE helps families in need with cash. "This allows them to decide for themselves what it is they need immediately. At the same time, the local economy is boosted when people are able to buy things again."

The hunger crisis hits women and girls particularly hard. They are usually the first family members to receive less to eat when food is scarce. Daughters are often married off young so that one less person must be fed. Before that, families have already sold all their belongings. Still, it is not enough to survive.

Zainab recounts the agonizing decision she had to make. "Food prices have gone up a lot in the last year and we have nothing to eat. Due to this difficult situation, we had to marry off our 16-year-old daughter to a man who has another wife," says Zainab. "Our Daughter cries every week. She tells us that she knows she was married to save the lives of the other family members. But our daughter's future has been destroyed."

CARE's support in Afghanistan

People in need receive:

- Cash assistance (households headed by women, displaced people and people with disabilities are given priority).
- Financial support, if they engage in necessary work.
- Food assistance and CARE packages for vulnerable households.
- In-kind donations: warm blankets, gloves, bonnets.
- Material support for local smallholder farmers.
- Medical care through mobile health teams. Pregnant and malnourished children receive targeted support.

CARE provided emergency assistance to more than one million people in 2021, about three quarters were girls and women. CARE has been working in Afghanistan since 1961.

Chad

"I finally learned to read and how to do math"

In the Lake Chad region, CARE promotes education and economic independence for women with the support of the EU.

Hagar (38) is a mother of six children. In the RECOsoc project she only recently learned how to read, write her name and count. Hagar lives from occasional jobs. For example, she sells traditional mats that she weaves herself at the market. "Before the classes, everything was complicated for me. When I offered my mats in the market, I often made mistakes," Hagar says. "The sight of a large bill caused me anxiety because I knew I would probably get the change wrong," she says with a smile.

Her eyes sparkle as she goes to the blackboard to show that she can now read words and recognize numbers. Classes are held in small groups in a straw hut. The women gather around a black slate board. "I also learned how to store numbers on my phone. Before, I gave symbols to the numbers that someone else stored for me and had to memorize them. Now everything is much easier," Hagar says. "My whole life has changed. I'm sure I'll learn a lot more," she says.

Income doubled

Hawa (25) made a fresh start in her career as a result of the project. The mother of four joined a group where women save together. They can then make small loans within this community or take out loans themselves. Hawa borrowed money to buy a pasta machine so she could make more pasta herself and sell it at a market stall. Because her income doubled, she was able to repay the loan quickly. CARE's RECOsoc project is funded by the European Union (EU). It runs until 2023 and will support more than 115,00 people in Chad and Niger.

Here's how CARE has helped since the pandemic began:

COVID-19

The Corona pandemic deepens crises worldwide

The corona virus is spreading in places where hunger, poverty and violence already prevailed. In many countries, health systems are overburdened. For example, there is a lack of vaccines and medically trained staff. CARE provides targeted support to the most vulnerable in the fight against COVID-19 – such as women, girls and refugees.

47.6 million people have been reached so far by CARE-delivered Corona aid.

4.9 million people received access to clean water.

4.8 million people received hygiene kits containing soap, hand sanitizer, face masks.

4.3 million people were provided with food because they were unable to feed themselves adequately due to curfews or loss of income.

890,000 people received cash assistance.

262.8 million people were informed about Corona through media campaigns.

20.6 million people were given advice on Corona through face-to-face meetings.

CARE ÖSTERREICH STRATEGY 2022/23

We work for a world of hope, inclusion and social justice, where poverty is defeated and people live in dignity and security. CARE is a global organization and a valued partner in the worldwide fight against poverty.

Women and girls

CARE puts women and girls at the center. Only the empowerment of women and girls can bring about social change that provides a secure future for women, as well as men.

Advocacy

CARE is particularly concerned with the following issues: empowering women, protecting the climate and environment, and the UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs).

Marketing, programs, finances

Of the total revenue, about 50.12 percent came from EU public funds and other institutions, 30.86 percent from private donations, 19.01 percent from domestic public funds and other proceeds, and 0.01 percent from other revenues.

Self-determined life

CARE is on a global mission to save lives. We see our mission primarily in humanitarian aid and innovation by implementing programs that are sustainably empowering and achieve the greatest possible impact for those who participate in them.

Programs

Of the project effort, approximately 55.77 percent were used for emergency relief and 44.23 percent for development cooperation. Of the funds, 51.29 percent were spent in the Middle East, 28.65 percent in Africa, 12.89 percent in Asia, 7.07 percent in Eastern and Southern Europe, and 0.10 percent in Europe. CARE Österreich managed a total of 67 projects in 20 countries in 2021.

Of the total expenses, about 92.12 percent were spent on projects and as-yet unused committed funds, 6.32 percent on donation advertising and general public relations, and 1.56 percent on administration.

CARE Österreich is climate neutral

In 2021, CARE Österreich was again recognized by "turn to zero" as a climate-neutral business location. We offset greenhouse gas emissions amounting to 32 tons via a climate protection project in Kenya.

CARE Österreich additionally compensates 15 tons of CO₂ via the organization atmosfair. This contribution is used to support climate projects in Kenya, Nigeria and India.

75 Years of the CARE Package®

In the summer of 2021, it was 75 years since the first CARE Package® arrived in Vienna. From then on, CARE Packages® brought much needed food to many hungry families. To mark the anniversary, there was a ceremony for CARE in Vienna's City Hall. "More than two-thirds of the children were severely malnourished at the time," said Vienna's Mayor Michael Ludwig. "The CARE Packages® saved many people from starvation. Vienna was the hungriest city in Europe. Back then, we were helped. That was important, because today we are able to help. And we do that worldwide." Andrea Barschdorf-Hager, CEO of CARE Österreich, continues to see a great need for support for people in need. "What used to be the CARE Package® is now help where it is needed most."

Empower women! Journalist Mari Lang is our new CARE Ambassador

With her podcast "Women's Issues", Mari Lang is very successful. But her commitment goes far beyond that. "As a working woman and mother of two girls, it is very important to me to stand up for women's rights and equal opportunities. That's why I'm particularly pleased to be the CARE Ambassador for Girls and Women," says Lang. "Because girls and women all over the world should have the opportunity to lead a self-determined life. There is still a lot to do before that happens. I would be delighted if you would support me and CARE in this!"

On the road for more CARE Packages®: the new CARE streetcar

"All aboard, please" on the CARE tram! The train for help for people in need has not yet left! A low-floor tram in the CARE design is operating in Vienna. The CARE streetcar is intended to make as many people as possible aware of the importance of our humanitarian work.

CARE Österreich would like to thank its platinum corporate partners CC Real, Wien Mitte - The Mall and Millennium City. The streetcar was designed by the "Wien Nord Serviceplan" agency, which has been supporting CARE with pro bono advertising campaigns for many years.
